

2011 North Dakota Housing Challenges

The North Dakota Mfg Housing Association has represented the factory built housing industry in our state for 50 years. Members offer both Manufactured and Modular homes.

NDMHA members are ready to help meet the housing challenges facing North Dakota. Factory built housing means quality. The homes are built in a climate controlled factory. Materials are stored indoors. With the weather pattern we are in this is very important.

Worksites around the state are inundated with water, materials are being soaked and existing basements are experiencing seepage or worse. Our unpredictable weather and labor shortage is making site built housing more difficult for North Dakota home buyers. NDMHA members have solutions to these problems.

North Dakota has strict guidelines and codes regulating the set up of manufactured homes and NDMHA members are dedicated to following these guidelines and are active in improving the products they offer. NDMHA members know that quality windows and energy efficient insulation values are important to the North Dakota Homeowner.

The housing shortage in North Dakota has brought with it many companies and contractors from out of the area, with no track record or reference, buying a home from these folks can be a gamble. Buying from a NDMHA member will give you peace of mind.
